Today the team loaded this huge lorry with supplies for Westreach. Food, sleeping bags, medicine, Lozi Bibles

The advance team left last week. They are clearing the campsite, digging pit latrines, making a clay oven and getting ready for us.

This huge Lorry has just left. The driver can't go fast on those dusty roads. He expects to drive all night, and hopes to arrive at the campsite around mid-morning tomorrow.

Do you like those purple Jacaranda trees in the background behind that lorry?
Below is another view of them.

They are next to the old house my grandfather lived in during the early 1930s

Kathi and her team leave early tomorrow morning

At 4:00 am Sunday morning I and my team plan to leave.

Sunday afternoon, Dr Richard Duke and his American team should land in Mongu. A bus should be there to collect them and haul them to the campsite. If all goes well, me and my team should arrive there about the same time as our American teammates.

Monday we plan to start a series of eight village clinics.

YES!

Stay tuned! I'll try hard to send you pictures often. Getting a good Internet connection is not easy in that remote area, but we'll try!!!!
